A Meticulous Man

He always took his trash to the curb on the day it was to be picked up. He never let his grass grow above two inches tall. He paid his bills a week ahead of time to avoid late fees. He never had over two cups of coffee in the morning. He washed his car each Saturday. He walked two miles a day rain or shine. He made sure his children were honor students in school. He was always working to keep his weight under control. He took care in everything; and then he died! He woke up facing eternity and realized he had neglected one very, very important matter. He had neglected his soul! The car no longer mattered; the lawn was not of any concern. Someone else would now take care of his bills. What really had mattered was now lost.
